CONTINUATION of the GREAT REDUCTION SALE A book of wills dating as far back as 1830 was found by an Appeal man yesterday in the County Court clerk's office, and some of the "last testaments" are worthy of reproducing in full. On nearly every page appears a family name now prominent in Shelby county. The wording is often peculiar, and in nearly every page appears as often peculiar, and in nearly every instance savors strongly of frontier life. The following extracts were taken at random. OLD WILLS.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE.

The will of William Lawrence, recorded in January, 1820, and the first in the book, gives everything but his negroes and his shotguns to his wife. He says: "I desire that my son William shall have my small shotgun, as it belonged to his grandfather Lawrence. I desire my second son, Thomas, to have my large shotgun." The will is peculiar, from the fact that the testator, who is evidently very wealthy, is so solicitous about his "two shotguns."

C. M. SMITH. In the same month C. M. Smith, in making his will, says: "I commit my soul to Almighty God and my body to mother earth. To my wife I leave all my bonds, bills and lands."

"Nine negroes, forty-three acres of land, we horses, two feather beds, one saddle, me cross-cut saw, one gun, one watch, one big wheel, one reed, one loom, two lat-irons, two ovens, two pots, two single-rees, one iron wedge, four books, nine-een geese and 104 acres of land in Virginia."

The concluding sentence is as follows:
"I have wrote for my sister's child from time to time, and you thought my honse a disgrace to you, and you would not let him come, and now I have given all away to a stranger, and you shall not have one cent if my will be done."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the goms, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulares the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Except for Carrington, Elsner, Fritch and the chorus, the engagement, from a musical point of view, was a failure. In some particulars Appleby is excellent, but he made at least one attempt he should never have thought of. An opera company without bassos and baritones is like a violin with nothing but an Estring. Except for Peaker's illness it would not have been prepared for such an emergency. The public generously took the will for the deed Monday and Tuesday nights, but yesterday tried their patience entirely too much.

The name of the Madison Square Theater has been associated with such eminently successful productions that an announcement of the coming of one of its companies is a guarantee of a pure play, excellentive treed and beautifully mounted.

mention of Mrs. Causey's name.

"Yes, it is a strange story the old lady tells," began Mrs. Bertorelli, "but I think there must be something in it. I don't know how long I have known her, but she has taken a good many Christmas dinners with me. She will come in about the first of the holidays, with a big bundle of old rags of clothing in her arms, lay it down at the front door and sit down by it until I invite her in.
